

SPPH Vancouver Summer Program Instructor Posting

The UBC Vancouver Summer Program (VSP) is a four-week academic program offered to international students to study at UBC. This program provides a great opportunity for the School of Population and Public Health (SPPH) to promote population and public health to undergraduate students from around the world. One block is offered by SPPH for VSP: July 15-August 8, 2024, and it consists of two courses: Social Determinants of Health and Introduction to Population and Public Health.

SPPH is looking for a graduate student to teach the Introduction to Population and Public Health course for the July 15-August 8, 2024 block. The course description is as follows:

This course addresses the question of how we can respond to population and public health concerns. It introduces the student to key perspectives and frameworks that are used to inform activities that can improve the health of individuals, families, communities and nations. Potential approaches to preventing disease and improving health, such as a focus on the prevention of disease, screening for disease, the implementation of monitoring and surveillance systems, and the treatment of disease will be covered. Key frameworks such as types of prevention (i.e., primary, secondary, tertiary), and evaluating the cost and effectiveness of activities will also be considered.

The instructor is responsible for the course content and its delivery. A draft syllabus has been created and the instructor is expected to adapt this syllabus to match their teaching style while also liaising with the instructor for the other course to ensure course content flow together. The course will run July 15-August 8, 2024 every weekday from approximately 9:00 am to 12:00 pm (39 hours of class time and a final exam/project). In addition, the instructor is expected to spend additional time preparing for the course, evaluating assignments, and handling end-of-course work. The instructor will carry out all duties and responsibilities under the direction of the SPPH Associate Director-Education.

Qualifications:

- Currently enrolled as a graduate student at SPPH
- Possess in-depth knowledge about introductory concepts in population and public health
- Experience leading classes and/or tutorials of 20 to 40 students, especially to students who have English as an additional language
- Excellent written communication skills
- Fluent in written and verbal English
- Ability to prioritize work and meet deadlines
- Ability to work independently while also collaborating with the other instructor
- Prior experience with UBC Canvas is an asset

Compensation: $6,000

Please note that this position is dependent on enrollment numbers. SPPH will run the course if we receive at least 20 students for the July-August 2024 block; if we receive less than 20 students, we will be cancelling the course.

The deadline for applications is May 19, 2024. If you are interested in this position, please send your resume and cover letter to Lisa McCune, Senior Education Manager, at lisa.m@ubc.ca and Emily Van Gulik, Academic Programs Manager, at emily.vangulik@ubc.ca.
